OPPORTUNITY

A storefront built for Mount Pleasant's foot traffic

Mount Pleasant keeps pulling in new residents, new employers, and a steady stream of people on foot — and this stretch of East Broadway sits right in the middle of it. Two ground-floor units at The Saint George are now open for lease, each with its own street entrance and glass frontage built to be seen.

495 East Broadway and 2475 St. George Street can be taken on their own or joined into one contiguous space. Either way, a tenant here gets direct sightlines from the sidewalk, easy transit access, and a growing residential population living right upstairs and around the block.

This is a chance to open where the neighbourhood is already headed — not where it used to be.

The Development

Saint George pairs street-level commercial space with residential floors above, and the retail units were laid out with operators in mind: wide glazing, and enough depth to configure a kitchen, service counter, or showroom without feeling cramped.

The base building is finished and vacant, so a new tenant can move straight into build-out rather than waiting on construction. Both units share the block's modern brick-and-glass exterior, giving whoever leases here a clean, current look from day one.

LOCATION

The Neighbourhood: Mount Pleasant, at street level

Mount Pleasant has turned into one of Vancouver's most sought-after neighbourhoods, and the momentum isn't slowing down — the Broadway Corridor Plan and the SkyTrain extension now under construction are both pointed straight at this stretch of the city. The blocks around The Saint George are already dense with independent restaurants, breweries, and coffee shops, and the people who live here tend to spend close to home.

Getting here doesn't require a car: the property sits on the City's bike lane network and a Broadway bus line, within walking distance of the future Mount Pleasant Station and Broadway–City Hall Station.

A few blocks north, the False Creek Flats have become a real hub for the city's tech and creative economy — Emily Carr University, Lululemon's head office, and the Centre for Digital Media are all nearby. St. Paul's Hospital is also relocating into the area, which should only add to the daytime population passing by.
